

Abstract of the Disclosure

The universal package for a flapper and accessories comprises a box foldable from a prescored blank and the blank from which the box is formed. Within this box isolating structures are provided to cushion and position the content, the isolating structures being variable in configuration to accommodate virtually any embodiment of flapper and any accessory therefor. The box is provided with a cover section which engages in an elevated manner over the contents to hold same in place and the package also includes viewing ports to ascertain the package content.